DON C. HALL MOST TALKED OF CANDIDATE

One of the most talked of men, among the list of candidates for office in the 41st Senatorial District, is DON C. HALL. Candidate for Representative in the General Assembly at the Primary Election April 10.

His vigorous campaign methods, backed up by his record as a Legislator and his varied experience in Legislative procedure, is attracting especial attention.

With Hon. C. F. Vebann of the Legislature, one of Wisconsin's most prominent educators, and Dr. Van Hise, President of the STATE UNIVERSITY, he had charge of all the Educational measures, in the interest of the public school system, of his native State.

He assisted in preventing the passage of vicious Legislation, interfering with personal liberty and equal rights and privileges, helped to cut down unnecessary appropriations, and to eliminate waste of public funds, helped to establish the "BUDGET SYSTEM" of accounting, and was instrumental in bringing about the consolidation of several Boards and Commissions and the repeal of many inoperative laws.

He brought the Senate bill, providing for extending the right of Franchise to Women in Wisconsin, through the Assembly to its final passage.

There is an appeal, to thinking Voters, in this record of achievement.

His introduction and the passing of the Co-operative Credit Association measure, his vote and support of the Hull Marketing bill, and his association with Hon. Edward Nordman, head of the Wisconsin Marketing Commission, as a taxation expert and member of the Legislative Committee on Taxation, and the able manner in which he fought for the "One day rest in seven" and the "48 Hour week" bills and other Labor measures, stand particularly to his credit with the Producing Classes.

His introduction of the "Deleterious Substance" bill, for the prevention of water pollution, and his action and vote in favor of protective measures in connection with skilled practitioners in the Medical Profession, and his support of the Eugenic Marriage Law has met with the approval of those interested in the promotion of Legalized Health Standards.

Conservation of natural Resources Reforestation, the protection of Bird life, fish and game, he has worked for consistently and has the appreciation of the "Nature Lover" and those who find pleasure in seasonal hunting and fishing.

The "Hedding Boxing Bill" and other measures for the promotion of Clean Sport, receiving his active support, and were brought to successful issues.

State and Community progress has been promoted by his labors for Good Roads, and Flood water control and Irrigation projects were a part of his program in the resolution offered by him and adopted by the Wisconsin Legislature, memorializing Congress to pass remedial Legislation along those lines.

His war record and untiring efforts in the interest of the Ex-Servicemen, is a commendable feature of his activities. As a result of his individual endeavors, Pres. Harding extended Executive Clemency to erring Servicemen, restoring them to Citizenship and the right to vote. These and many more of Don C. Hall's achievements, which have been brought out in this campaign, are the factors which are exciting so much favorable comment.

Don C. Hall has been, and is a champion of Hon. Frank O. Lowden as a candidate for the Presidency his interest in Illinois affairs having been aroused when he first came into the State from his native State of Wisconsin in 1916 to help elect Mr. Lowden for Governor.

Don C. Hall will undoubtedly be one of the nominees, but let every voter who believes in preparedness for office, Work and Vote for him on April 10th., that he may go into the November Election with the strongest possible primary indorsement.

SMALLISM GIVEN A TERRIFIC WALLOPING AT BIG JOLIET MEETING

The Emmerson-Carlstrom Rally held at the Orpheum theatre at Joliet Wednesday night drew a tremendous crowd. Louis L. Emmerson, candidate for governor, was the first speaker and gave a red hot address showing how the Small faction is seeking to get votes in trade for hard roads and pointed out that Small is not the father of hard roads, that the first move to establish a hard road system in Illinois was inaugurated during the administration of Gov. Frank O. Lowden, and that when Small went into office the $60,000,000 bond issue had been voted on and the money was ready for him to carry out the mandate of the people.

Mr. Emmerson assailed the propaganda that is making the rounds that he is opposed to organized labor. He nailed one lie after another. He showed that he has always upheld union labor, that he has had the auto license plates made in union shops, that the reason why this year's plates were made in Ohio was that the firm making them, under bid the Illinois firms by $37,000. He also showed that coal used by the State in Springfield is purchased from union mines. He made his position very clear and received a tremendous ovation.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom who is a candidate for re-nomination to this office, went into the details of road building and showed how Small has only been using the roads to get votes. When a community has not been friendly to Small, they have been punished by having hard roads denied them, even tho they needed them badly. He also went into the Interest Suit and showed how Small was forced to pay back money he had kept illegally from the state, how the money was made up by assessing state employees, to create a fund so that not one cent came out of the Governor's pocket. Attorney-general Carlstrom, also showed that the deep water way is not the idea or work of one man, but of many. He characterized Big Bill Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, as big Bull, and Small as King Len, and described the mid-night ride of Thompson to Springfield to see Small as another mid-night ride of Paul Revere, but of a different character and that a fast bargain was made between the two to swap votes.

He also stated that the man who was assailing Mr. Emmerson's labor record was John Walker of Danville, one time Farmer-Laborite candidate for governor and a socialist. He pointed out that Walker's statements did not hold water and should not be believed.

Otis Glenn, candidate for United States Senator, gave a resume of the Col. Frank L. Smith case, showing why he was barred from his seat in the United States senate on account of the corruption connected with his campaign. Mr. Glenn took a veiled shot at Senator Barr of Will County. The latter is a Small man and supporter. Mr. Glenn said he had high regard for Senator Barr as a man and a friend, but cautioned the voters with these words, "Do not let Dick Barr be the first one to go to Springfield next January when Louis L. Emmerson is inaugurated governor and say, 'Lou, we had one devil of a time to turn Will County over to you.'"

A Mr. Cramer, a trade unionist for 36 years, also spoke and endorsed Mr. Emmerson for governor, saying he had investigated his labor record and found that he has always been a friend of organized labor and cautioned union labor not to be hoodwinked by the false Walker propaganda.

Wm. H. Peters well known Civil war veteran died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Max Haass in Frankfort, Illinois on March 22, following a week's illness.

Mr. Peters was born in Hamburg, Germany on March 4, 1844. His parents having died during his infancy, an aunt reared him.

In 1861 he came to America and settled in Frankfort, which was how ever of short duration, as the next year, because he felt the call of his adopted country so keenly, he enlisted in Co. F. 64th Illinois Infantry and served until the end of the war. The deceased was with Sherman on his march to the sea.

On February 22nd, 1866 he was united in marriage with Miss Jane Caroline Eberhard of Frankfort. They went to housekeeping on a farm near Frankfort. In 1869 he and his family moved to Grinnell, Iowa where they lived until 1902 when his wife answered the call to the Great Beyond. Mr. Peters then returned to Frankfort. To this marriage were born thirteen children, five of whom died during infancy.

In 1905 he again married, to Mrs. Sophia Folkers, a sister of his first wife, who also answered the Final Call on Aug. 12, 1911. Since then the deceased made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Max Haass until his death having reached the age of 84 years and 19 days.

Funeral services were held at the Haass home Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, the G. A. R. having charge of the service. Rev. G. Gerhold pastor of Frankfort St. Peter Evangelical church delivered a fine funeral oration. The body was shipped over the Rock Island Sunday evening to Grinnell, Iowa for burial where the G. A. R. there, had charge of the services.

Those remaining to mourn his loss are: three daughters, Mrs. A. Douglas of Malcolm, Iowa; Mrs. B. B. Keyes of Burbank, Cal.; and Mrs. Max Haas of Frankfort. Five sons, Wm. J. of Turner, Iowa; Geo. C. of Brooklyn, Iowa; Frank F. of Malcolm, Iowa; Fred H. of Princeton, Oregon and Chas. E. of Grinnell, Iowa. Sixteen grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Peters was a man of kindly personality and was a close friend of the Editor of the News-Bulletin for years.

Henry Brinkman aged 79 years, died at his home in Frankfort March 26, at 8 P. M. following a lingering illness of Bright's disease. Funeral services were held from the late home Thursday afternoon to St. Peter Evangelical church in Frankfort, Rev. G. Gerhold, pastor of the church officiating. Burial took place in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

He leaves to mourn him besides his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Fred Heft, three grand children and three great grandchildren.

SMALL CROWD AT SMALL MEETING AT MOKENA WED.

The Small rally held at the St. John Evangelical church parlor in Mokena Wednesday night was lightly attended. N. F. Heiman served as temporary chairman in place of Ona E. McGovney who was not able to be present on account of a village board meeting in progress at the same time.

Pence Orr of Joliet was one of the principal speakers. The chief points for Small, were the good roads and deep water way construction.

A mud slinging campaign was started by John M. Jenco, candidate for re-nomination as state representative when he panned Don C. Hall of Mokena, also a candidate for the legislature. He also took a rap at another Mokena man.

The Fisher murder case was again dragged in. Mr. Heiman read a report repudiating a statement Hugh Bolton, former postmaster of Joliet had made in a recent address here that he had been instrumental in getting a government reward for Mrs. Fisher following the death of her husband when he attempted to capture a mail bandit.

Mr. Jenco stated that he and ex-sheriff John Walker had been instrumental in getting a reward of $500 from the Will County board for Mrs. Fisher.

Elmer Bielfeldt, candidate for State's Attorney, also gave an address and made a good impression.

Lorenz was injured quite badly. Chief Smith of Tinley Park was also in the car but escaped injury. The front of the car was badly smashed.

Chief Hansen had been taken over to Tinley Park at 2:30 in the morning to try an identify a man who had been captured by officer Smith following the robbery of the soft drink parlor of Louis Hermismeyer.

C. H. WARNING

TO THE PEOPLE OF FRANK- FORT TOWNSHIP

As I am a candidate for Highway Commissioner on the People's Party ticket, for a second term, I am taking this means of asking the voters of the Township to go to the polls on April 3rd and cast a vote for me as Highway Commissioner.

I have done all I could to improve all township roads with impartiality and also to keep roads clean. I did all possible to build hard roads, building the following: Bartel Heisner Rd., 1 1/4 mile; Fred Martie Rd., 1 1/4 mile; Kohl Rd., 1 1/4 mile; Wolf Rd., one-half mile and Geo. Mager Rd., 1 1/2 mile. The Mager Rd is not finished. The Township has a four year petition Hard road on now, which I would like to complete.

During my term of office, the township received about 4000 yds. of penitentiary stone. The County also gave a big help on our State Aid roads, paying all bills of hauling and spreading of 135 cars of stone. Our supervisor and myself petitioned the County Board to make Wolf road a State Aid road, which they did.

During my term we have had to expend about $2000.00 for new graders etc. Received a new bridge from the County known as the Strassenburg bridge costing about $4400.00 I cut the Road and Bridge tax in our township one year which made a difference of about $2000 less to work with on our roads. The County helped to build the Rahmi bridge costing $4600, half of which the County paid.

I want to thank the State, County and our Town Boards for their co-operations extended me during term of office and on this record do I solicit your support on April 3rd.

Easter Recalls the Promise of Eternal Life

Of all the anniversaries which humanity celebrates, Easter is the most significant. Christmas is the joyous celebration of a birth, of the beginning of the most conspicuous and potent life in human history. It relates primarily to a life on earth, to an existence that is comprehensible because it is expressed in the material forms that make it tangible, visible, and easily subject to the human understanding. But the whole purpose of that life related to an existence beyond the material, to another and a different life infinitely more important, and Easter is at once the symbol and the assurance of that larger and greater existence for which man is designed and to which earthly life is but a vestibule.

The event which it commemorates is a resurrection from death so well substantiated by the evidence and so tremendous in its implications, that for nearly 2,000 years it has been by far the most powerful influence in the thought and action of mankind. In that event is the promise, the assurance, the proof, the certainty, of immortality. It has given to human life an immeasurable importance, has extended it from a few hours to an eternity, has lifted it up from the dust and clothed it in the apparel of divinity. Eternal life! That is the meaning of Easter.

Firm Belief in Immortality.

But in the necessary freedom of human reasoning there are always theories antagonistic to the meaning and significance of Easter as well as direct denial of that conception of deity upon which the Christian and all religions are based, and denial in particular of the historical evidences upon which the Christian world founds its faith. Positive atheism, however, is not, and never has been, a serious menace to human welfare. There is something instinctive in humanity that protects it from such a negation. Nowhere, and at no time since man became conscious of his own ego, has he been without some consciousness of deity, however vague or distorted it might be. And associated with that there has nearly always been some feeling of hope or belief relating to survival after death that is apparently no less instinctive. The two ideas, the idea of God and the idea of immortality, seem to be set so deeply and firmly within man that intellectual denials can make no serious headway against them.

More dangerous, because more subtle, are those mechanistic theories of human life now unhappily prevalent in many of our higher institutions of learning, which reason the soul out of the body in the name of pseudo-science. When a youth is told with an air of authority that thought is merely a physiological process, that ideas and, of course, ideals, are but the products of the mechanical stimulus of a physical organ, the brain; when he is taught indirectly, if not directly, that there is no such thing as mind or spirit or soul; he is, if he accepts these theories, deprived not only of all religious foundations but of all incentive, other than animal, for living. If man is only a mechanical automaton, as some of our psychologists contend, life indeed is without purpose or without hope, and is not worth living.

Consciousness of Soul.

But such fantastic and depressing theories are contradicted by the individual consciousness of every human being. It is inconceivable that even their creators and distributors actually believe in them. They are in effect the denial of all human experience, the rejection of all knowledge. Those activities of consciousness which have created all that is great and fine and wonderful in science, in art, in literature, in architecture, in mechanics, are but fortuitous reactions to mechanical stimulus in a physical organ! We are all Frankenstein's, soulless beings produced by a soulless nature! And such pernicious absurdities, clothed in sesquipedalian terminology to give them an air of profundity, are gravely imparted to youth as learning. No wonder that now and then a youth says to himself "What's the use?" and commits suicide. And if they expressed truth all humanity, indeed, would better commit suicide and put an end to the colossal farce of existence.

But fortunately for mankind it rejects such nonsense in the guise of learning, with proper contempt. It knows that it has a consciousness that is self, an ego, a mind, spirit, a soul. "What makes each one of us be what we are is only the soul," said Plato long ago, and that is the common conviction of humanity. And that soul, however it may be subject to material limitations in a material ex-

"He Is Risen"

"Sweet and clear the birds are singing,
At Easter dawn!
Hark, O hear! the bells are ringing
On Easter morn.
And the song that they sing,
The good news we hear them ring,
Is 'Christ, the Lord, is risen, is risen!'"

"Easter buds will soon be flowers,
Fragrant and gay;
Winter's snows give place to showers,
And night to day;
Hope and joy come again!
Life and light forever reign!
Yea! Christ, the Lord, is risen, is risen!"

istence, is not in itself subject to a material death. Together with the consciousness of a soul is the virtually universal and unchangeable conviction that it survives physical dissolution. That is a conviction which springs instinctively from the soul consciousness, which is supported by reason, without which, indeed, life itself is irrational, and the truth of which is demonstrated by the event which Easter commemorates. Consciousness, feeling, reason, fact, all unite to make life after death the only rational, the only supportable, the only satisfactory, solution of the problem of human existence.

Death's Terrors Overcome.

It is only in that faith that human life acquires a meaning and a purpose, it is only in that faith that life is given hope and assurance, and it is only in that faith that death loses its terrors and becomes the instrument of promotion and of triumph. In that faith life is a fruitful progress toward a blessed goal, a preparation for eternity; and he who by that faith and by the character of his life has more than destiny secure, may contemplate the event of death with unfearing tranquility, knowing it to be but an incident of an eternal life already won. "So live," says the poet —that when thy summons comes to join

The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death.
Thou go not, like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained
And soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one that wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

What matters death, indeed, when it is but a sleep from which one wakes to a more abundant life!—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Lesson for April 1

JESUS THE SUFFERING MESSIAH

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Whoever will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Hero.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Heroism of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Cost of Being Loyal to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Interprets His Messiahship.

I. Peter's Confession of Christ (vv. 27-30).

Two questions of Jesus provoked this confession. 1. "Who do men say that I am?" (vv. 27, 28). This question referred to the opinions of the people regarding Jesus. Some believed Him to be John, the Baptist, some Elijah, and some, one of the prophets. They all recognized Him to be a teacher or prophet with more than human authority and power. Jesus was not content with this acknowledgment. Had He been satisfied with this He would not have been molested in Jerusalem, for the Jews willingly acknowledged Him as much more than a human teacher. 2. "Who say ye that I am?" (vv. 29, 30). Jesus persistently claimed to be the God man, the very Son of God incarnate. He wanted the personal opinion of the disciples concerning Himself.

II. Jesus' Teaching Concerning the Cross (vv. 31-33).

He charged the disciples not to make public His Messiahship as that would precipitate the crisis. The disciples had much need of instruction yet, to prepare them for the crucial hour of the cross.

1. What He taught (v. 31).

(1) "The Son of Man must suffer many things." He suffered physical weariness and hunger, ridicule and contempt and even misunderstanding.

(2) "Be rejected of the elders, chief priests and scribes." These were the nation's official representatives, the very ones who should have known and received Christ and recommended His reception on the part of the nation. Truly He came to His own and His own received Him not (John 1:11).

(3) "Be killed." This announcement was startling to the disciples. They had not yet come to realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion and the cross.

(4) "Rise again." Though this was utterly incomprehensible to the disciples, He showed them that this would be the glorious issue of His death.

2. How the disciples received His teaching (v. 32).

So unwelcome was His teaching touching the cross that Peter, the spokesman of the disciples, rebuked Him. Peter later saw through this darkness the light of glory in the hilltops beyond (1 Pet. 1:3, 4).

3. Jesus rebukes Peter (v. 33). He told Peter plainly that his attitude was due to his being under the influence of the devil.

III. Jesus Going to Jerusalem to Die (Mark 10:32-34).

Jesus went to Jerusalem with the consciousness of the awful tragedy of the cross before Him; the treachery of Judas, the fiery persecutions of the priests, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mocking, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross between malefactors, the nails and the spear all were spread before Him. He moved on to His goal, not by external necessity but a fixed purpose. He had not only come "to minister but to give His life a ransom for many." The joyous outlook of the victory which was to be accomplished through the shedding of His blood led Him forward (Heb. 12:2).

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (Mark 8:34).

The law of the Christian life is suffering. To follow Christ means to turn one's back upon the world. To repudiate the world means to incur the hatred of the world; to be Christians means to share Christ's suffering.

1. There must be denial of self (v. 34). There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self. All people practice self-denial, but only Christians deny self.

2. The cross must be taken up (v. 34). This means the suffering and shame which lie in the pathway of loyalty to God. To live the godly life means suffering (II Tim. 3:12).

3. Christ must be followed (v. 34). This means to have the mind of Christ (Phil. 2:5) and to perform the service of Christ. The blessed issue of following Christ is a life of freedom here and now, and eternal life hereafter.

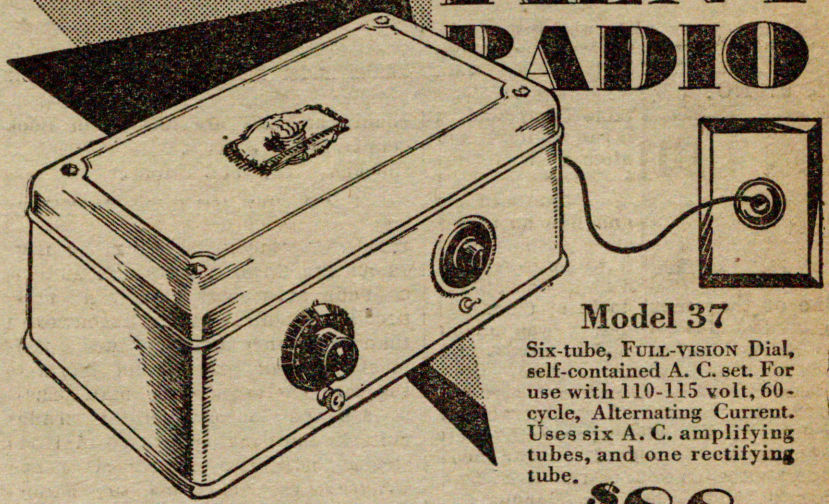

Must Cry Unto God

It is not enough for the soul to be in need; the soul must also cry unto God. Need alone is the begueter of despair, but need with crying is the birthplace of prayer. The very distresses the soul is in are the birth-throes of such prayer.—James H. McKenney.

A Benefactor

A physician who reaches out to benefit humanity leaves a record behind him that is worth while. Such a man was Dr. R. V. Pierce. His study along medical lines, and his knowledge of the remedial qualities of herbs and plants led to the discovery of his wonderful herbal remedy, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is just the tonic required if a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, headache or backache. Favorite Prescription can be had in tablet form as well as liquid at your neighborhood store.

WOMEN GETTING BALD

The next five years will show women with Bald Heads, or going in that direction. Men attribute it to Heredity. What will the women say is the cause for it? Thousands of young men bald, or going that way, who had no need for getting bald or even scarce of hair. You surely can give one or two minutes each day to take care of your hair. This is all the time required. You owe this to Nature, as it was given to us in the beginning by Nature. Grow hair on your Bald Head. Grow new hair, destroy dandruff by improving the condition of the scalp which feeds the hair. Then you have the problem solved.

Forst's Original BARE-TO-HAIR is not a tonic, but is a scalp fertilizer and germicide. The results from its use has really created its own demand over the entire country. Literature and information sent upon request.

WESTERN GIRL STRENGTHENED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Manchester, So. Dakota.—"I was in a terribly weak and run-down condition when a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it and after a short time I felt better. We are a family of five and live on a 360-acre farm, so I have quite a good deal to do both indoors and out. At first I was unable to do anything and had to have a girl, but after taking the Vegetable Compound I finally gained my strength back and also gained considerable in weight. I will gladly answer letters from women in regard to your medicine."—Mrs. OTTO J. Geyer, R. F. D. 1, Box 20, Manchester, So. Dakota.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

The March report of Oscar Nelson, auditor of public accounts for the state of Illinois, for the banking department of his office shows 1,341 banks under his jurisdiction. Of this number 1,064 are outside of Cook county and 277 are located in Cook county, 90 of which are in the city of Chicago. The total resources of these banks are approximately $2,800,000,000. The resources of state banks are rapidly increasing, showing the marvelous growth of the state of Illinois, as bank statements more clearly reflect the condition of a commonwealth than any other index. The department has been exerting its efforts in the last twelve months, particularly, toward the consolidation of smaller units in the banking field so that one strong institution might replace two weaker ones. This has been accomplished to a marked degree, as in the year 1927 there were twenty such changes. Aside from the policy of consolidation for the purpose of cutting down overhead and rendering better service to the depositors, the auditor's office has urged an increase of capital stock, strengthening of surplus and building up of reserves so that any loss occurring might be readily disposed of without any impairment of the rights of the creditors. Illinois, like many other states, has passed through a heavy period of depression, but this condition has been corrected to a marked degree.

Trustees of Chicago's proposed World's Fair and Centennial celebration in 1933 have approved the general proportions of a preliminary sketch of ground plans for the site of the fair on the lake front. The sketch was submitted by Edward H. Bennet, recently appointed member of the fair's architectural commission, to whom that task was assigned. The plans call for a main island of approximately 800 acres which is expected to be completed by the middle of 1931. This artificial island will be allowed a year to settle, leaving a year for the construction of the buildings. A four and one-half mile lagoon crossed by four permanent bridges will run between the island and the mainland.

A condemnation suit to get possession of a 120-acre tract for one of the important units on the Illinois deep waterway, has been started in the LaSalle county Circuit court by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. The land is being sought as a site for a canal which will connect the Marseilles dam and the Marseilles lock.

With more than 300 down-state milk pasteurizing plants in first class sanitary condition, East St. Louis and the other large southern Illinois cities face the summer with prospects of enjoying one of the best and safest milk supplies in the world. Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state director of health, said recently. The director of the state department of public health pointed out that sanitary engineers from the department have inspected each plant twice during the last two years. This inspection has covered 341 downstate milk pasteurizing stations handling upward of 2,000,000 pints per day.

Mrs. Julia Frances Cloyd Caldwell, widow of former Congressman Ben F. Caldwell, who represented the district in which Springfield is located, died at her home near Chatham recently. She was seventy-two years old. The Caldwell home has been one of the show places of Sangamon county for many years.

Weed-free seed is stressed as an essential to profitable production by O. T. Olsen, superintendent of the division of plant industry, Illinois department of agriculture, commenting on the increase in the number of seed samples submitted for analysis in the laboratory conducted under his supervision. The fact that grass seeds analyzed in February exceed by 1,026 the number passed upon in the same month last year denotes increasing interest in this service.

Dr. A. R. Crook, curator of the Illinois State museum in the Capital city, has a calendar which he worked out some years ago and which is said to have met the approval of a number of Illinois leaders. Doctor Crook's plan differs from that of the one now being undertaken by the League of Nations at Geneva in that he suggests 12 months while the League proposes a year of 13 months. Of his 12 months, 8 would have 30 days and 4 would have 31. The 4 seasons would each comprise 91 days. He would have one extra day at the end of each year—the League calendar puts the extra day between two summer months.

There has been a total of 1,543.4 miles of federal aid highways completed in Illinois as of June 30, 1927, of a total of 6,616.8 approved to that date, according to a recent report of the American Automobile association. There was a total of 76.3 miles completed during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927. The federal aid highway system now includes 185,772.2 miles of roads selected by the constituted state and federal highway officials as of primary importance for the accommodation of interstate highway traffic.

The $1,000,000 sea wall at Beardstown, built to safeguard its residents from future floods, has just been completed. Beardstown is noted for something else besides floods. The city was the starting point of Lincoln's journey on a flatboat with a load of logs to New Orleans, where he saw the evils of slavery for the first time. Beardstown citizens also point with pride to the spot where Lincoln stood when he received his commission to serve in the Black Hawk war. It was in the historic old courthouse in Beardstown that Lincoln, as chief counsel for the defense, succeeded in having Jack Armstrong acquitted of a murder charge by breaking the testimony of the state's star witness. This was in 1858. The courthouse is still standing and is one of the show places of the town.

New building and engineering work started in the state of Illinois during the last month amount to $84,277,600 and in Chicago to $63,336,900, according to a recent survey. In Illinois and Chicago the above figures were the highest February contract totals ever recorded in both the state and the city. The state's record was 84 per cent over that of January, 1926, total, as well as 94 per cent ahead of the February, 1926, total. Chicago's total was almost double the amount reported in the preceding month and was more than double the amount reported in February of last year. The awarding of the contracts for the Civic opera house to be built in the city of Chicago at cost of $20,000,000 helped to swell last month's record.

Completion of the new dairy building on the Illinois state fair grounds before the opening of the annual exposition next August is practically assured. Plans and specifications are being worked out and present plans are to receive bids at an early date, Director S. J. Stanard of the department of agriculture has announced.

The proposed building will cost approximately $200,000, but the site for the structure has not been selected by the state fair advisory board. It will probably be located across the road from the coliseum. Construction of a swine pavilion also is under consideration, together with a poultry building.

Governor Small has announced the appointment of Gus H. Radebaugh of Urbana as director of the state department of conservation. Mr. Radebaugh, chairman of the Champaign county Republican committee and active in the ranks of the Izaak Walton league, succeeds William J. Stratton of Ingleside, who resigned recently to make the Republican race for secretary of state.

Awarding of two bridge and four pavement contracts has been announced by Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, as follows:

Route 105, section 103B, Adams county, bridge, Herick Construction company, Carlinville, $17,398.27.

Route 64, section 126B, Kane county, bridge, Iowa Bridge company, Des Moines, Iowa, $1,436.74.

Route 116, section 107, Woodford county, pavement, W. D. Lonergan, Jacksonville, $86,268.75.

Route 117, section 113, Woodford county, pavement, H. D. Lonergan, Jacksonville, $86,304.18.

Route 11, section 45, Clark county, pavement, J. W. Etchinson, Casey, $57,432.77.

Route 88, section 123, Stark county, pavement, Central Engineering company, Davenport, $191,000.40.

More than $20,000,000 were paid out by insurance companies in Illinois during the year of 1927 for fire losses. This was brought out in the official report of statistics as compiled for the Illinois Firemen's association by Elmer W. Weldler, Mt. Olive, state historian. The exact amount paid out by the companies totaled $20,212,635.96, the report said.

The state division of highways has announced that bids for paving approximately 100 miles of hard roads, and about 30 miles of highway in central Illinois counties, and bids for the construction of bridges in about two dozen downstate counties would be received and opened on April 4.

R. B. Miller, state forester, recently returned from the national meeting of the American Forestry association, where damage done to woodlands by grazing was stressed.

About 85 per cent of the farm woodlands of Illinois, Mr. Miller said, are grazed by cattle and hogs, "to their lasting damage both to mature trees, young timber and the soil."

Donations from students and alumni at the University of Illinois to obtain Lorado Taft's statue for the university have reached $17,000. Forty thousand dollars are necessary. It is planned to have the statue placed on the campus at the 1929 commencement, which will be the fiftieth anniversary of Taft's graduation from the school.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has given an opinion to Hinton G. Clabaugh, chairman of the state parole board, in which he holds that a record should be kept on the vote of each member on cases which are passed upon by that body.

Herman Osterholt, driver of the stagecoach which carried Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas between Beardstown and Chandlerville many times, died a few days ago at his home in Ashland. He was born in Germany in 1844.

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Clever Trick Worked

A New Yorker opened a new restaurant in West Forty-fourth street, but not many persons were aware of the fact. So he bought the largest goldfish bowl he could find, filled it with water and placed it in his window with this placard over it: "Invisible fish from Rio de Janeiro." The police have frequently had to drive away the pedestrians who gathered before the window in an endeavor to see the invisible fish. One man tapped on the glass and shook his hat in an attempt to bring the fish out where he could get a better view.

Apple Monuments

A well-known monument to apples, in the form of a pillar, was erected in 1895 at Wilmington, near Lowell, Mass., to the Baldwin apple. There is also a tablet in the town of Camillus, Onondaga county, New York, on the original site of the Primate apple tree. Another monument in New York is the monument to the Northern Spy, erected in 1912 at Bloomfield. The Wealthy apple is commemorated by a monument at Excelsior, Minn. This was unveiled in June, 1912.

"Business First" in Mind of Bridegroom

Senator Smoot talked to a group of reporters about business. Among other things, he said:

"Sentiment should be kept out of business. That is an excellent precept. But even excellent precepts can be carried too far.

"At a fashionable wedding not long ago the bridegroom failed to turn up. Noon sounded, then one o'clock, then two. Everybody was in despair.

"But a little before three the young man arrived, smiling and breathless. He explained that he had been trotting about from bank to bank cashing the numerous checks that had figured among the wedding presents.

"You can't stop a cashed check," he murmured tenderly to his bride as they took their places at the altar."—Detroit Free Press.

New Idea in Football

The fame of the Shoeless Wonders football team of the Presbyterian orphanage at Lynchburg, Va., is spreading fast. The orphanage team possesses only one football shoe, discarded by the Lynchburg high school. This shoe is used by the player who does the kicking and as soon as the pigskin starts flying through the air, the shoe is discarded. "You couldn't put shoes on those kids if you wanted to," says Dr. William Medeson, superintendent of the orphanage. "I believe that the reason they win so many games is that their opponents make fun of their bare feet and try to step on them. This makes them mad; they dig their toes in and plow through."

Bell Covers for Plants

In a vegetable garden in England bell-shaped glass covers are used, one for each plant. They are more successful in most respects than hotbeds and no permanent structure is needed.

Assessment Roar Comes At Hospital

FROM THE KANKAKEE DAILY NEWS, MARCH 8, 1928

A roar went up today from employees of the state hospital here protesting against the levy being made to pay Gov. Small's campaign expenses. The News is informed that the edict is "pay or get out", and while most of those affected will pay, there are some who will carry their protest to the point of getting out.

The schedule of assessment is said to be half a month's pay for the majority of employees, although there are a few who earn enough to be called upon for three weeks salary, and another limited few who must pay 14 per cent of their yearly income.

Stoker Hit for 14 Per Cent
Dr. W. A. Stoker, superintendent of the institution, is one of those who comes under this latter heading, as does C. E. Robinson, former chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, who after residing in Louisiana for a number of years, came back as state farmer.

For the greater part those who are forced to make this involuntary payment are not financially able to do so. "Between having to buy cars of Ed Jeffers when our earnings reach a certain figure and being continually called upon to provide funds for Small there is mighty little profit in holding a small state job these days", said an employee to a representative of The News.

Much Dissatisfaction.

"But there is no escape for us unless the power of Small is broken, and I am of the opinion the vote of state employees in Kankakee is going to show a marked difference this spring over the past. We have more dissatisfaction here than I have seen in years; in fact, it comes mighty close to being a revolt, and I would not at all be surprised to see the usual ring majority in the 4th and 5th wards cut to the bone.

Also Raised "Defense" Fund
"You know that we have not been free from assessment even between campaign years. A little over a year ago we had to kick in to raise Small's 'defense' fund, the bulk of which the governor used to settle with the state for the interest suits, at the time he pled guilty and paid over $650,000 of our money. What a joke that was. Convicted of taking at least $1,000,000 from the state to aid his personal fortune, when the day of settlement came we had to pay the bill, and he still has all of that huge sum. Now we pay his campaign expenses."

"Will I settle?" Sure," the employee said in response to that question. "What else can I do? I have kicked into the defense fund; into the campaign fund of four years ago and paid my share of some local campaign expenses. So I'll pay this. I need the job."

Levied Throughout State

From different sections of the state has come information to the same effect. That an assessment is being levied along specified lines which no employee can escape, and that the basis of levy is much higher than of the past. It is estimated that from this source alone a fund in excess of $1,000,000 will be raised for Small's primary expenses. And if the governor should be successful in securing the nomination the same set of employees will have to raise another fund for the general election this fall.

Not First to Pay

The grumbling and rumbling from the Kankakee hospital has been heard for a week past, although other levies were started in outside institutions before the assessments were made here. It said that the state penitentiary employees have already paid their share.

The complete schedule of assessments in force is said to be based on the following scale:

Under $200 a month salary assessed one-half month's pay.
$200 to $300 a month salary assessed three weeks pay.
$300 to $4,000 a year salary assessed 10 per cent of year's pay.
Over $4,000 salary assessed 14 per cent of year's pay.

MOKENA

Mrs. Hugh Deadmore of Joliet, formerly of Mokena, who has been employed at the News-Bulletin office, was taken ill last Tuesday while at work and has been ill at her home in Joliet since. The all-prevailing flu is the cause of her illness.

The balmy days of last week induced some farmers to start sowing oats in this section, but this week snow and ice have held sway and the early rush of field work will be held up for a while.

Word comes that Mrs. Elmer Sippel who is taking treatments at the Mayo Brothers hospital in Rochester, Minn., is improving, though slowly. Mr. Sippel is also staying in Rochester. Her many friends hope for her timely recovery.

Another election is engaging the Mokena voters attention and that is the school election. The term of Richard Hensel as school director expires this spring.

Following on the heels of the school election comes the village election the third Tuesday in April. Three village trustees and a village clerk are to be elected. The outgoing officers are: Ona E. McGovney, Albert Braun and Edward Schenkel, village trustees and Karl E. Krapp, village clerk.

Charles Sylvester is being rushed with orders for home made rag rugs which are all the rage now.

On Friday evening, March 23rd, Rev. and Mrs. Glen T. Beaty entertained a group of their Intermediate Age-Group friends at a "Hit and Miss" party. Mrs. Rose Moriarty and family graciously opened their home for the occasion and assisted Rev. and Mrs. Beaty in entertaining. The evening was spent in playing old fashioned games which represented many seasons of the year and in solving "brain-teaser" puzzles. Much excitement was occasioned by the various races which were participated in by all; the most popular of the races was one in which marshmallows were speared by a needle and thread and then eaten. After two hours of such fun, refreshments were served and the party was closed with a moment of devotion to the Giver of all good fun, and the group dispersed.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper and Dr. and Mrs. E. G. McMahon acted as chaperones at the happy affair. The invited guests were: Misses Frances Sorenson, Elmira Koeller, Eloise Balaz, Velma Klose, Dorothy Kraus, Luella Storey, Ruth Brown, Myrtle Roberts, and Bernice Hostert; Messrs. Olander Bensen, Robert Gilmore, Chester Storey, Eugene McGovney, Leo Kolber and Carlos Hall.

While playing ball last summer, James Marti, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Marti, fell and ever since complained of a pain back of his ear. Saturday he underwent an operation at the St. Joseph hospital in Joliet and a hedge thorn nearly an inch long was removed from the back of his head. He is doing fine.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kolber and son Leo attended the dedication of the new Jewish synagogue in Joliet Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler attended the funeral of W. H. Peters held in Frankfort Sunday.

Ada, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler has been ill with the flu for several days.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH

The sermon subject next Sunday evening will be: "I Will Yet Praise the Lord." Mrs. J. V. Hall will sing "Jerusalem." This will be our Palm Sunday service. We invite you to worship with us.

Our Easter service will be held at 7:30 a. m. We earnestly invite the whole community to worship with us in this early hour on Easter. There will be special music, baptism of children, reception of members, the Easter sermon. We wish to make this a truly happy family occasion and invite both adults and children to join us at this hour. There will be no evening service. Our Sunday School children are urged to attend the early morning service but for those who cannot do so the pastor will be in charge of a service for them at 10:30 a. m. Those children who can come to the 7:30 service are requested to do so, bringing their families if possible, and not to attend the regular Sunday School time. The teachers of the Sunday School are excused from the 10:30 hour, so that they may attend other services if desired. The 10:30 o'clock time will be only for those children who positively cannot come to the 7:30 o'clock service.

At the St. John Evangelical church the class of 1928 will be confirmed by Rev. W. J. Cramer on Palm Sunday, April 1st. The services will be in English and will begin at 10:30 a. m.

The P. T. A. are planning for a bunco party in the near future.

Important Announcement to every owner of a Model T Ford

ON MAY 25, 1927, when Henry Ford first announced his plans for making a new car, he announced also that he would continue to make parts for the Model T Ford. He said:

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. It blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads everywhere. It broke down the barriers of distance in rural sections, brought people in these sections closer together, and placed education within the reach of everyone. We are still proud of the Model T Ford. If we were not, we would not have continued to make it so long."

For twenty years, the Model T Ford led the automobile industry and it still serves more people than any other automobile. Over one-third of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords—an indication of the sturdy worth of the car and its value to people in all walks of life the world over.

The Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts for these cars "until the last Model T is off the road." That is a part of Ford service. That is what Henry Ford meant when he said: "We believe that when a man buys one of our cars we should keep it running for him as long as we can and at the lowest up-keep cost."

Because of this policy a considerable part of the Ford manufacturing plants is given over to the making of parts for the Model T Ford. These replacement parts are made of the same material and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled.

Make it a point, therefore, to see the nearest Ford dealer and have him look over your Model T Ford. You may find that a very small expenditure will enable you to get thousands of miles of additional service, and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.

ORLAND PARK

Many boys read exciting tales of Boy Scouts adventures but few really experience them. The junior Boy Scouts of Orland Park and Worth under Mr. Sanders had an interesting experience Saturday while out on their hike.

They put out a forest fire that had started in the forest preserve. It was a big undertaking for the boys as it had spread quite a bit. They worked very hard and succeeded in getting it under control and finally got it out after about two hours work.

The junior scouts are coming on very nicely. The boys from the two communities get together every week on Saturday for a hike. The Orland boys met at the parsonage every night after school. The Worth boys meet at the Worth Community church. Elmer Daniels has been appointed troop leader in Worth. It is planned to appoint one for Orland later. The boys are planning to build a camp soon.

The annual township election will be held next Tuesday, April 3rd. The following candidates are to be voted on: for highway commissioner Wm. T. Beagley; for school trustee, Chas. F. Burkhardt.

A number of Orland people were at the public hearing on route 53 held at Lockport Tuesday afternoon. This highway is of much interest to Orland township.

The Southwest highway boosters are very active in getting this highway thru this section. The latest on this highway is that it will be a 40 foot highway to 123rd street and a 20 foot road from there to 143rd st. at Orland which road and Wolf road will be used as a temporary route to the Will and Cook line until such time as Will county will say where they will meet Cook county.

Special Palm Sunday Services

A very special service is being planned for Palm Sunday April 1st by Rev. Paul Sanders at the Orland M. E. church. There will be special music and the new Bible given by the adult Bible class will be dedicated. There will also be a communion service.

WORTH COMMUNITY NEWS

The Worth Church is being recognized thru the state as a fine example of interior arrangement of the church building for worship.

Last Sunday there was a delegation of people who came from a church at Lansing, Illinois to study the interior arrangement especially the arrangement of the altar. They are planning to pattern their church after it. Rev. Sanders has had letters from many different churches asking for suggestions as to how their churches could be arranged in a similar way. There has also been many people to visit the church to get suggestions from it.

Rev. Sanders has made a special study of interior arrangement and worship services. The Worth church is a demonstration of his findings on what can be done with the small church auditorium.

He has been asked to write a series of articles on the development of the Worth project for a national magazine.

TINLEY PARK

Tinley Park closed its basket ball season last Tuesday night at Crete, splitting even in a pair of games. The heavyweights ran up the largest scores of the season, winning 45 to 26. The lights dropped a close game losing 26 to 19. For the heavies L. Aulwurm, E. Anderson and E. Funk shared scoring honors. Brilliant guarding by W. Funk and W. Bruening held the Crete lads at bay.

Last Thursday night Crete played at Tinley Park and lost 30 to 28 in the heavy weight game, but copped the light weight game 25 to 18.

The season closed has been very successful. Lightweights of promise, who deserve mention for the season's work are as follows: W. Goebel, Harold Lorenz, Walter Mesenbrink, Norman Simon, Allen Brueggeman, E. Siemsen, and Arthur Lehman.

The Triangle Club of Tinley Park has elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: President, Clarence Goessel; Vice-president, Marwell Valeta. Secretary Alice Hartman. Treasurer Edwin Hug.

Director of Athletics, Selby Hirsch for boys; Selma Brueggemann for girls. Press agent, Rudolph Detwiler. Monday evening the first call for spring base ball was issued.

FRANKFORT

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heisner of Green Garden, who died Thursday at Silver Cross hospital, was buried at Pleasant Hill Cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. John Lühring and son Floyd who both have been ill with the flu are improving.

The Ladies Aid Society of the St. Peter Evangelical church met at the church parlors and also served their monthly "coffee" Thursday afternoon and evening and also had a very nice program after supper was served.

Walter Weichbrodt who has been very ill, is improving.

Mrs. Fred Warning, Mrs. John Staff and Mrs. Wm. Folkers were Chicago visitors last Monday.

Henry Brinkman is very ill.

Rev. Gerhold will confirm a class of seven next Sunday at St. Peter's church. Following are the members of the class: Marie Geuther, Irene Schroeder, Laverne Bettenhausen, LeRoy Bettenhausen, Russell Mager, Walter Boettcher and Herman Weichbrodt.

Mr. Henry Hess and Mrs. Call of Chicago attended the funeral of W. H. Peters last Sunday.

The confirmation re-union of St. Peter's church will be held Palm Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hanson of Plainfield attended the funeral of Wm. Peters last Sunday.

Eva Jean Pfaff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pfaff, Jr., is ill with the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lenhardt and son Howard of Chicago Heights visited at the Henry Harnack home last Sunday.

Mrs. Herbert Bruggemann entertained the afternoon pinocle club at her home Friday afternoon.

FIRE!

Fire is something everyone dreads. Your home, your keepsakes and perhaps everything you own is reduced to ashes. Poor electrical wiring is one of the greatest fire hazards. Most anyone can run wires around the house and get a light, but how safe is it? From a safety standpoint no matter how expensive your building or how good it is built, it isn't worth much with poor wiring.

What do we mean by poor wiring? Read next week's advertisement for further information.

The Office of State's Attorney is one of the most important in the County and requires a man of ability, force and high character who can be depended upon to enforce the law strictly, but fairly, and will never compromise with crime in any form.

Disregard for the law is a gnawing evil that is undermining our entire system of government and that must be effectually STOPPED by placing in office men who have the courage to enforce the law. This can be done only through the banding together—at the ballot box—of all law-abiding citizens.

It is the solemn duty of the State's Attorney to see that the law is upheld and respected, and he cannot do this unless he is absolutely free from all alliances with the violators of the law.

Elmer H. Bielfeldt is a successful lawyer of unusual ability. He was born and raised in Will County, and has a spotless record in the legal profession.

"Now, I won't bite you," he said, "don't be afraid of me. Just be a good girl and do as I tell you, and—sweet papa!" He laughed lightly at his own humor, then he added briskly, "See here, Ron. You'll have to be married at once. If anybody should come on board to look us over, you smuggled the girl aboard without my knowledge or consent. She is your sweetheart, see? And you did it. So they'll have nothing on the ship. Now if you get married at once it will clear me of any suspicion of complicity."

"Yes sir," stammered Ronald faintly, his eyes pleading with Gay.

"N-no," she gasped.

"Yes. You came for that, did you not?" There was severity beneath the captain's amorously playful tone. "You came for it—now you get it. Not all women are so lucky. We'll have Bates and Hodge come up to witness it. Only takes a minute, nothing to it, really. Otherwise, Gay," he explained kindly, "it is an irregularity and we have many reasons for not wishing to subject ourselves to an investigation. You, who know everything, know that."

Ronald's eyes begged her for assent, for acquiescence, promised protection. But Gay did not look at him. "Captain," she pleaded desperately, "I—I did think so. I—I did want to. But now—suddenly—I am frightened. I am not sure. He seems different to me. My—my heart fails me."

"Ah!" The brown eyes were narrow black slits. The voice sank to a purr. "You know—what you know. Much. One shrinks from a lawfully wedded husband who happens to be—at odds with the law?"

"Oh, no, it is not that." She flashed a sudden warm look full upon him. "Not that. What is the law to a woman who—really loves? But do I? Or was I only thrilled for a time, stirred by mystery? Really, I do not feel the same to Ronald. I thought him so rugged, so big, so virile. Now beside you he seems—young—inefficient. Can he hold my love?"

The captain's head went back in a great soft laugh. His eyes upon Ronald Ingram were straight and unfathomable. "Oh, that is fair, is it not, Ron? She must be sure of herself. But you cannot stay here while you decide. Not the thing, you know. Come with me. The captain is the official guardian of his guests. I will take care of you—until you are sure."

Ronald Ingram flung himself against the door.

"No," he shouted. And then more faintly, "Never."

The captain's pleased eyes did not wander from Gay's vivid face, where fear and daring struggled for control. He did not so much as vouchsafe a glance to the officer who defied him. But the silken voice purred.

"Oh, yes, Ronald. Oh, yes. Come Gay."

Ronald Ingram slid slowly away from the door, his eyes upon his boots, and stood motionless while the captain, with Gay's hand in his, led her back to the room from which he had brought her.

"You're not only a very pretty girl, you're a very wise one," the captain said, as he helped her, solicitously attentive, from the big slicker, and put her coat, gloves and leather hat upon a hook on the wall, beside his own coat. "I like that," she smiled, giving it a little pat. "Looks nice and domestic. Sit here."

He put Gay into a big chair, and glanced appraisingly the length of the slim young figure, in its knickers and boots and flannel shirt. Gay self-consciously straightened her tie and smoothed her sleek dark hair. Now that the protection of the high collar and the low-set cap was gone, weariness, exhaustion, showed in her face, and her eyes were fringed with black.

He touched the bell, and stood in the door to answer it. "Some port," he said, "two glasses. You are tired," he said to Gay. "Are you hungry?"

"No. But I feel—very tired."

The boy passed in the tray at the door, and the captain quickly filled a small glass for her.

"Take this. And then you shall rest. But first, let me tell you this. No, drink it. It will quiet your nerves. It has been a shocking night." His kindness was disarming. Gay drank it slowly, felt the grateful warmth in her throat, at her heart. She smiled at him.

"Now you are going to sleep, but these things you must bear in your mind. You can see that you are tied to the boat as long as you live, can't you? Now, is there any reason why you should limit yourself by marrying a young subordinate? People are only married for the eyes of the world. Well, the eyes of the world aren't going to see much of you. We'll go through a sort of form—to get the papers right—and I'll sign you on. But you would be very foolish to tie yourself to an underling—unless you are very sure you are very much in love, would you not?"

"I—suppose so."

"I'll say so. Of course, all this is only laying up trouble for myself. Ronald, who has been my friend, will be my enemy, but I can take care of Ronald. Our doctor is a rank idiot when there's a skirt about, and there'll be trouble with him, and trouble with the crew, and trouble at the ports. But then, I've had trouble before." He smiled at her. "You are a very pretty girl—and a very brave one. I think it's the nerve of you that really gets me. Worth a bit of trouble, I fancy."

A short rap at his door caused him to pull himself up, impatiently.

"Not now, not now, I'm busy," he said sharply, although he barely raised his voice above its wonted softness.

"Sir, beg pardon—it is very important."

The captain, with a bare sign indicating Gay to move back into the shadow of the room and remain quiet, went to the door. A seaman passed him a folded bit of paper on a tray. The captain read it, nodded his head reflectively, glanced back at Gay.

"Send the chief engineer to me," he directed the man.

And then he came to Gay. The companionable frankness of his voice was gone, instead it dropped to its most silky fineness, a fineness she already learned meant danger.

"Now tell me, who knew that you came aboard this boat?" His eyes hypnotized her.

"Nobody," she said quickly. "I give you my word. Nobody knew it."

"Who would discover your absence, and search for you?"

"Nobody. I am an orphan, an artist, I live alone. The people on the island will think I have gone to New York for a visit. Nobody will seek me. I am a free soul. Ask Ronald Ingram. He knows."

The engineer touched the door, opened it and came in. He did not glance at Gay in the corner. The captain handed him the bit of paper.

"Shall we show them our heels?"

The engineer considered. "How are the papers? Everything tight?"

"Tight as a drum. Except this woman—who smuggled herself aboard. But we can fix that up. The papers are perfect."

"Then I say we lay to, and give 'em the gab. What to run for? Then they know it's guilt. Face 'em, and flaunt it, I say."

The captain smiled at him, nodded assent. "You're right, or course. All right, then. I'll be right down."

The engineer went out.

The captain came to Gay and took her hand. His voice was soft, his touch caressive.

"Now, Gay, this is your chance. A boat is drawing up to us to look over our papers. You can go back on it if you wish. Would you like to?"

Wild hope throbbed in Gay's heart, beat such a tumult of glorious relief she felt he must have heard its music. But she remembered what Ronald Ingram had said, she was warned by the silken softness of the captain's voice. Stilling as best she could the hope that swelled in her heart at the thought of rescue she said faintly:

"Oh, no. Not yet. Can't I just stay on—with the boat? Can't I wait till I am sure?"

"Are you sure you want to?" His voice was a velvet breath. "This may be your last chance to go back. Are you sure you wish to stay on?"

"Yes, please. I am not afraid now. You will take care of me. I took a chance and came. I'd rather take another chance and stay. If you'll let me."

"Good for you!" His voice was warm and hearty. "I see we're going to hit it off first rate. I'll fix it up with Ronald. Stick to the original story, Gay. You smuggled aboard—under my own bunk—I always tell the truth when convenient—and I didn't see you until I had finished my paper work ready to turn in. I was just going to marry you to Ronald when they signaled us to lay to. Now you've got balance, and you've got nerve. You'll get through it. Right?"

Gay nodded briefly.

"Stay right here. I won't have you up at all unless I have to." He pulled a book from the rack on the shelf and threw it on the table. "Marriage service," he said. "Just ready to read the lines over you. That'll clinch it. Don't be frightened, Gay. They may be only rum runners. They're nothing on us. Just sit tight, and—"

he kissed her hand—"I like you. Poor Ronny!"

Then he went out unhurriedly, smiling back at her.

Gay turned off the light in the room, got her coat and hat, and crouched by the door which she held ajar, listening. When the moment came, she intended to run out boldly and demand a rescue.

The captain stopped to speak to Ronald, to explain Gay's new status, and the two men went on deck together. Already a small boat manned with twenty men had put out from the coast patrol and was drawing swiftly up to the Roger Williams.

"Don't look so good," said the captain slowly, scanning the horizon, for lying about them lay six boats of the little coast-guard fleet, completely hemming them in. "It's something more than rum," he said. "I wish we could get rid of that d—d girl."

CHAPTER XIV

With the captain and his chief officer in the bow of the boat putting out for the Roger Williams, stood Randolph Wallace, and he was laughing. "I know that boat," the captain said, "she's been held up time and time again, but she always manages to get clear. Stick as the dickens. That gang. Money back of them. That's how."

"She's a beauty," Rand said, admiring eyes on the Roger Williams.

The coldness of the morning air, the tang of salt on his lips and in his nostrils, exhilarated and thrilled him.

"What'll they do with her, I wonder—the boat? I know there's a big reward out for this gang, but I think I'd rather have the boat. Do you suppose they would give her to me, instead of the reward? I feel just like settling down to a profession this morning. The last of the Captains Wallace. I think I'll go to sea. Gosh, how Gay would laugh."

The captain laughed, too, companionably. "They'll put her up at auction," he said, "and if you really want her—and if your charges against the gang hold water—they'll fix it up so you can bid her in. They couldn't give her to you outright—at least, I don't think so—too much red tape. But they could let you in on the bidding, and see that you had the money."

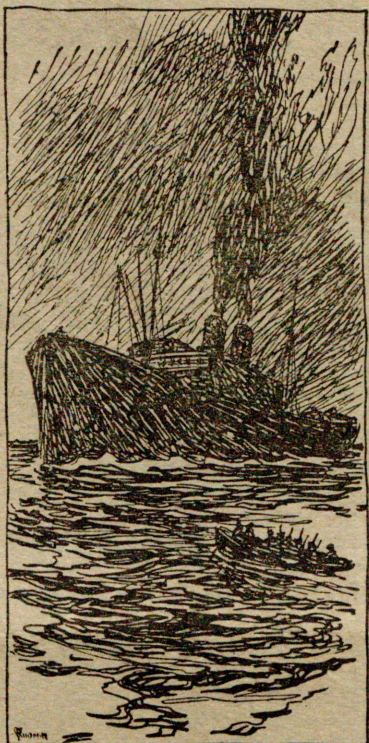

Rand's eyes, already shining with pride of ownership, roamed the Roger Williams, showing strong and stanch in the gray light, coasting the waves.

"I wonder I never thought of it before," he mused thoughtfully. "Yeh—Captain Wallace, last of the line. Pleased to meet you." He grinned joyously to himself, thinking of Gay.

As they pulled alongside he spoke again, suddenly.

"Any red tape to keep me from going aboard first? I want to make sure of a good looking chap, with sad eyes like a cow."

The captain laughed and motioned him up, so that the first feet aboard the Roger Williams were not those of active United States service, but the idle wandering ones of Randolph Wallace. Naval officers, however, were close behind him, followed by twenty service men.

Captain Garman stepped up to them quietly, all at ease. "You say you're after an escaped convict, but you come well beel for a single stow-away."

"You have found no stowaways aboard, then?" asked the officer courteously.

"Well, a sort of one. A woman—running after one of my officers. We discovered her under my own bunk, if you can imagine such gall. I was just going to marry them when we got your message. Only this woman."

"Will you bring your passengers up and let us look them over?"

"We are only a freighter, as you know. But we carry up to twenty passengers on the side. Sublimated steerage passengers they are, cheap. Their papers are all right. I went over them myself."

"We'll look them over, if you don't mind."

Captain Garman gave a quiet order in an untruffled voice, and a man detached himself from the group and ran down to put it into execution.

"We're taking you back with us, captain," the officer went on slowly. "We have the goods on you. If you want to go peaceably, all right. Or if you want a scrap, we have the guns on you."

"What charges, sir?"

"Oh, a nice variety. Running Chinese, for one thing. Getting crooks out of the country on our side, and bringing them in on the other. Little matter of murder, too, if I am not mistaken."

Tropical Birds Happy Only When Employed

In the tropical bird house at the Audubon Park zoo, New Orleans, lives a collection of birds said to be the most industrious creatures of all living beings. They are so industrious, say the zoo supervisors, that materials with which the tiny creatures carry on their ceaseless labors are withheld from the spacious bird house except during certain hours. When the birds are deprived of this material, known as "raffia," a kind of palm fiber, they become dissatisfied, apparently because they are forced to remain idle.

The birds are known as "weavers," getting their name from the work in which they are so proficient.

Captain Garman's eye turned slowly out to sea, swept the horizon. His men were willing to fight, and the ship was built for speed as well as for endurance. But what chance, with six of the steel gray service dogs lurking watchfully at bay, hemming them in. Rather match wits with the lawyers in the courts, which he had done before, and come off never second best.

"You'll find everything O. K., I fancy," he said imperturbably, "but of course if you insist I will return with you."

The passengers were hurried up from below, huddled back against the railing, and with them Gay, once more in her dark slicker and leather cap, who had slipped among them as they passed the captain's door. Gay's heart was glad in the knowledge that she was saved. But when, in the rear of that group on deck, she saw Rand, debonair, triumphant, smiling, her first feeling of heart-bursting joy that he was safe gave way to one of humiliation and shame. Rand came in triumph, with the United States navy at his back, to find her here, knickered and booted, like a thief among thieves, captured, disgraced and banded lightly from man to man. She sank back farther into shadow, almost preferring the hazards of the sea with Garman and the Roger Williams, to humiliation before the dear loved eyes of Rand.

"Go over the lot of them," came the crisp order. "Look for papers, especially, and weapons. Lieutenant, take the second detail, and search the ship."

Gay cowered farther into the corner. Search her! She watched the approach of a brisk young officer with horrified staring eyes. She bit her lips until she tasted blood; she would not move, she would let him handle her, let him search. At the sudden slap of his hand upon her hip she shrank back silently. Feeling the bulk of the pistol in her pocket, he thrust his hand roughly inside her coat.

"Oh, no!" Her faint gasp was irrefragable, instinctive. But soft as it was, it carried across the deck.

"See here!"

With a bound, Rand leaped from his posture of careless grace against the rail, and hurled the astonished group from side to side before him.

He caught Gay's arm, and drew her about, amazed, incredulous.

"That's the stowaway," the captain explained silkily. "Found her under my own bunk. I was just going to marry her to my second officer."

"Gay," stammered Rand, "Gay, is it you? But it can't be you! But it is you!"

Gay cowered before him. "Oh, Rand," she sobbed, "I thought they had captured you and I came to be with you, and they hadn't, and you weren't, and—"

She was a pitiful, ridiculous figure in the flapping slicker. The faint morning light showed her wan face, smeared with tears.

"Gay," Rand repeated, helplessly, staring at her, unbelieving. "It can't be you—it isn't—"

"Rand," she pleaded tearfully. "Please! He can marry us, the captain, he can marry anybody. Rand—just to please me."

"Gay, do you mean—"

"Oh, Rand!"

"Well, there's no reason why he can't, is there?" Rand demanded quickly of the officer who commanded the capture.

"Not if you make it snappy," said the officer, laughing in huge enjoyment of this unexpected turn. "Before I take over the boat."

"Oh, we'll be snappy, that's the thing we do best. Gay, think a minute! Pull yourself together. Are—you—sure?"

"Oh, Rand!"

"Well, how about it, captain? You've no objections, have you?"

"Marry her! Marry you!" ejaculated the captain, dazed with the suddenness of this surprising new demand. "You! Good lord! Another one! Came on board after Ingram, switched over to me, and now got the hooks in you. All right, all right. I'll marry anybody. She's the smoothest worker I ever saw. Jim, bring up the book from my desk, it's open to the page. We'll have Ronny for one of the witnesses. Good lord—another one—and been aboard less than two hours."

In the pale gray light of Christmas morning, standing out bravely, a disheveled absurd little figure, with a band of desperate criminals to left of her, a troop of American guardsmen to right, with Captain Garman, wanted for a hundred crimes in half a hundred ports, reading the service over her in a soft and silken voice, Gay Delane, in boots and rubber slicker, with tear-blinded eyes and salt-stained face, renounced her freedom forever.

[THE END.]

Message of Victory

Likened to Caesar's

Charles R. Flint, the New York banker whose marriage was recently announced, is known as "the father of the trusts." He is, in fact, the father of American Woolen, United States Rubber and American Chicla. He is also, as the "father" in the title might suggest, a great friend of children, and he possesses a store of anecdotes of childhood.

"We all know," he once said at a dinner, "Caesar's famous message of victory to the Roman people—I came, I saw, I conquered." Well, that message was wonderfully to the point, but a boy beat it the other day.

"This boy came home from school with his hand cut."

"What's the matter with your hand?" his mother asked.

"The young Caesar puffed out his chest and answered:

"They was darn sharp front teeth Bill Jones used to have."

Evidently Was Hungry

Albert Brown, a down-and-out, walked into a restaurant at Mount Carmel, Ill., and asked for a handout. Two persons who heard Brown's story agreed to pay for all he could eat. Brown made away with seventeen hamburger sandwiches, nine cups of coffee, seven slices of bacon, two pints of milk, three oyster stews, six jelly rolls, two cans of beans and six glasses of water.

Vast Irrigation Project

About 2,000,000 acres could be irrigated by the Boulder dam basin in the states of Nevada, Arizona and California and in Mexico. The construction period would be about seven years from the time work is started on the construction railroad. The dam, to store 25,000,000 acre-feet, would cost $41,500,000 and power development an additional $31,500,000, according to bureau of reclamation estimates.

Hjalmar Rehn Now A Candidate for Re-election for State's Attorney

Is being supported by the great mass of people who know and appreciate his record of achievement.

He is being opposed by powerful political interests who are determined to punish him and at the same time gain control of this important office. Here are a few things the voters of Will County should not forget:

1. The conditions at the prison and honor farm two years ago were a menace to Will County. The deputy warden was murdered and six men walked out of the gate with the captain. A Will County Grand Jury under Rehn exposed the situation and called for the discharge of many employees.

2. The Klein murderers [six of the seven] were convicted by Rehn and sentenced to hang. Only three of these were hung. Again a Grand Jury under Rehn found that saws, knives and guns were being carried into the Will County Jail resulting in two jail breaks and the terrorizing of the whole county.

3. The Klein case cost Will County $32,094.79. A State appropriation for part of this was vetoed by Governor Small although the Statutes make it mandatory for the State to reimburse the County. Small was still stinging from the Prison investigation and the defeat of his candidate for judge by Judge DeSelm.

4. Rehn's opponent is the candidate of the Walker crowd. It was Walker who refused to serve the State's Attorney's "John Doe" warrants after one raid had netted the whole of Torino's gang who had settled on South Lowell avenue. It was Walker who took the star away from Rehn's investigator after he had captured a half dozen slot machines.

5. Walker's men working for Markgraf were in charge of the jail when the saws and guns were carried in by Mexican women. Markgraf is out to beat Rehn because a Will County Grand Jury put the blame on him. He has been very frank in saying that this is his grievance against the State's Attorney.

6. The men who are opposing Rehn at this time including their candidate are the same crowd who tried to punish Judge DeSelm for not jumping to the Small whip. Rehn fought in that campaign for DeSelm and an independent judiciary.

REWARD REHN

For daring to expose the men high up in politics and for driving Chicago Vice lords out of Will County.

Announcement of the Color of the Primary Ballots

Notice is hereby given that the color of the Primary ballots of the respective political parties entitled to participate in the Primary Election to be held on April 10th, 1928, will be as follows, to-wit:

Republican White
Democratic Green
Independent Republican Pink
Dated at Joliet this 26th day of March A. D. 1928.

Albion F. Delander,
County Clerk.

TO THE VOTERS OF BREMEN TOWNSHIP

As a candidate for election as Highway Commissioner for the township of Bremen. I take the liberty of writing you to ask you for your support on April 3, 1928.

I am seeking election as a stalwart Republican and I have always been a staunch Republican. My candidacy was the choice of the regular Republican Club of Bremen Township and other organizations. I was asked if I would be a candidate.

I make no false promises but will do all I can for the betterment of our highways. No partiality will I give to anyone or particular territory. This office as Highway Commissioner, I will fulfill to the best of my ability. I will co-operate with the County Board to get portions of cement roads that have been neglected and also our portion of free state stone for the use of our roads.

I was born in Bremen Township October 17, 1887 and I have lived in this township during these many years.

My father, John Fulton, was an early settler of Bremen Township, having lived here for seventy-seven years.

My family consists of a wife, Kathryn Fulton, a daughter of nine years and a son of eleven.

In the year 1910, I was elected as a director of the school board of District 146 for three years.

During my campaign I feel that it will be my duty to remain home and devote as much time as possible to the care of my tax books for the interest of the public, and leave my campaign for election with the voters of the township.

I promise the tax payers an honest business-like administration as Highway Commissioner.

I thank you for your support in the past and if you approve of my record as your servant, I shall appreciate your support at the primaries on April 3rd.

Very truly yours,
B. H. FULTON
